

The first part of the report deals with the general situation of the country. It is found that the population is increasing rapidly, and that the land is being cultivated more extensively than in former years. The principal crops are wheat, corn, and cotton. The stock raising industry is also of great importance. The climate is generally favorable, and the soil is fertile. The principal cities are New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. The commerce is flourishing, and the country is becoming more and more civilized.

The second part of the report deals with the details of the country. It is found that the land is being cultivated more extensively than in former years. The principal crops are wheat, corn, and cotton. The stock raising industry is also of great importance. The climate is generally favorable, and the soil is fertile. The principal cities are New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. The commerce is flourishing, and the country is becoming more and more civilized.